How Movie Money Moves.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

NEW YORK, August 25 .- It becomes business is passing through a parlous and troubled phase of its spectacular career. No one conceals the fact. Men connection with the business end of the big film companies say that few of them have made any money upon their investments for the last two years. They assert that the business faces the need for a sweeping reorganization. Immense sums of money have been poured into the movie business. Wherever this wealth is going, it is certainly not returning to the investors.

Needless to say, the season opened then and there. The Broadway people entered filmland like sheep going through a gate. And the money that came to meet them was something stupendous Billy Burke is said to have received $140,000 for making a single serial. Geraldine Farrar is reputed to have made $2,000 a week. Such neargreat ones as Ethel Barrymore, Anna Heid and 'Dustin Farnum are said to have been paid in the vicinity of $1,000 a week each. E. H. Sothern, who is now making three pictures for one of the big companies, is said to receive $2,500 a week. Mrs. Fiske, Mabel Tallaferro, Douglas Fairbanks and Olga Petrova are some of the other well known ones that made the change. A host of lesser ones followed. A leading man who had been on Broadway for many years, but had never achieved any national reputation—or anything approaching affluence—easily got a contract for $550 a week. The leading lady who plays opposite him, often having the more important part, and who grew up in the movies, receives $100. sion-signed a contract with a great

So the Broadway people have all received the salaries of movie stars, and they have been almost as numerous as real stars on a clear night. They explain where a large part of the tremendous movie investment has gone.

Talent from the legitimate stage has not been the only extravagance of this lusty young industry, however. Keen competition between a number of strong companies, all, up to a few years ago. expenditure in all lines. For example, a few years ago settings were made up with the help of paint and papier-mache, but without much expense. Now there is a passion for the genuine among directors who fairly out-Belasco. At least one of the big companies has an employe whose only duty is to attend auctions and house sales, and poke about the antique and second-hand stores in search of the rare and expensive bits that will give an authentic touch to the pictures.

Crowds, too, have grown in size at an alarming rate. A few years ago a great battle scene would be enacted with the help of perhaps a hundred supers, who would charge across the scene again and again. Now thousands are often used. At $1 to $5 apiece they represent a formidable investment.

Directors' salaries are another soaring item. Where a couple of hundred used to be a high weekly stipend, twelve hundred is not unusual now. And the chief art of this important functionary seems to be to devise new ways of spending money—although devising ways of saving it is apt to become his forte in the near future.
